Project

Field(s)	Intercultural performance project
Description	WHAT DO WE BELIEVE IN is an european intercultural performance project that wants to throw a glance at political, sociocultural as well as religious crises that are diagnosed throughout Europe. In cooperation with four or five cultural institutions, venues, or festivals from different european countries a variety of performance projects will be developed on the subject of crises of faith. In exchange with each other, the different experiences and ways of dealing with personal and European crises of faith are to be worked out.

Profile

Whether you are a theatre, a dance company, a venue or a festival – we are looking for anyone who is interested in elaborating various intercultural performance projects on the subject of faith and crises. Since Sommerblut as the project coordinator is famous for its inclusive and cross-border projects, we are looking especially for artists, playwrights or cultural managers who are socio-critical, inclusive, LGTB-friendly, dissenting, open for experiments and ready for new ways of thinking. Optimally, you already have experiences in European cooperation projects and you are interested in an intercultural exchange of ideas, visions and experiences.
